Whig & Courier.

JOHN H. LYNDE, -- PROPRIETOR.

THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1869.

State Election, Monday, Sept. 13.

FOR GOVERNOR,

Joshua L. Chamberlain.

As the time approaches for the new census to be taken, many interesting questions arise, among which is that of the apportionment of representatives in Congress, with the attendant influence of different sections. This question particularly affects New England, whose representation since 1810 has regularly diminished in the popular branch. The comparative representation of New England in the House of Representatives since 1790 is shown by the following table:

	1790.	1800.	1810.	1820.	1830.	1840.	1850.	1860.
Massachusetts	14	17	20	13	12	10	11	10
Connecticut	5	7	7	6	7	6	4	4
N. Hampshire	4	5	6	6	5	4	3	3
Rhode Island	2	2	2	2	2	2	2	2
Vermont	2	4	6	6	5	5	5	5
Maine				7	8	7	6	3
	29	35	41	39	38	31	29	27

In 1790 there were 16 States and 106 members; in 1800, 17 States and 142 members; in 1810, 19 States and 183 members; in 1820, 24 States and 213 members. (Maine became an independent State March 15, 1820.) In 1830, 26 States and 242 members; in 1840, 26 States and 223 members; in 1850, 31 States and 234 members; and in 1860, 34 States and 241 members. West Virginia was created an independent State in 1863, and Nevada and Nebraska were admitted to the Union subsequent to the apportionment, making a total at present of 37 States and 243 Representatives.

There are other causes at present operating to diminish our comparative power in the Government besides that of the westward growth of the country. The reconstruction measures at the South have shown that the political power of section is to be greatly increased; and the adoption of the 15th amendment may make some changes even in some sections of the North. The question will then be presented whether this difference shall be allowed to diminish our representation or whether the number of representatives shall be increased. It is estimated that the next census will develop a population of little less than 40,000,000 for the whole country, which would, at the present number of Congressmen, fix the number for each representative at little over 160,000. Every New England State would lose members in this way, and a strong effort will be made to increase the number of representatives to 300 or more to cover the increased population.

It must be a matter of astonishment to those not acquainted with the remarkable facility with which Democrats forget disgreeable history, to observe the manner in which they hail the nomination of General Rosecrans in Ohio. They actually propose over it as if it were a trick never before attempted in the annals of their party legerdomain. On the contrary, it is a very stale trick and one under which they have frequently tried to cover very disgusting truths in relation to their real condition. They attempted it once on a larger scale than this, when they thought the military prestige of Gen. McClellan could carry the laughable theory of "the war a failure." They attempted it only one short year ago, when they expected the epaulettes of Frank Blair could dazzle the popular eye so it could not see repudiation behind. They have frequently attempted it in various State conventions in a less emphatic manner by fastening the soldiers with praise after having hopefully consigned their bodies to Southern graves during the war. But the tricks have been too transparent, and the people have exposed them. They know now, as they have known before, that such Democratic nominations as that of Rosecrans, and all such resolutions as that passed by the Democratic convention in this State, faintly and doubtfully commending the soldiers, are only baits thrown to the people, as the angler throws the gaudy colored effigy of a fly by means of which to strangle his victims.

The New York Journal of Commerce is scolding the California democracy for making in their recent State Convention a platform "so antiquated in some of its features that they seem to have been thrown out about the time of the building of Noah's ark, and to have survived the flood and been swept in by some recent tidal-wave on the Pacific coast." The Journal of Commerce is one of those old-fashioned blanket sheets heretofore supposed to be invulnerable to the stabs of improvement. But even that paper seems to have got its eyes open to the fact that success never can come to the Democracy with the old errors inscribed on their banners. If not more conscientious than Brick Pomeroy's Democrat, it lives near Wall street and understands the virtue of success, and begins to snuff the danger of longer running the machine in the old ruts. The Democratic dilemma is truly heart-rendering. The struggle is close between the love they bear for antediluvian ideas and the hope of success. So far the flood has been unfordable by their leaders, although a few of the followers have become bolder and waded straight across to Republican ideas.

THE CLAIMS OF DESERTERS. A Washington dispatch says a very important case for the Court of Claims has just been made up, and will be brought to trial early in the next term of the Court. It grows out of the claims of deserters from our army during the war for bounties promised by the Government. These demands go before Second-Comptroller Brodhead for settlement. The practice from the beginning has been to be governed by the reports from the Army Headquarters or the War Department, and persons treated there as deserters are so treated by the Comptroller's office, which refuses to pay the bounties. A considerable number of this class of persons, backed up by attorneys and claim-agents, now set up that no one ought to be deemed a deserter until he has been proved so before a court-martial. The Comptroller resists this "assumption, and some of the lawyers have made up a case for the Court. Mr. Brodhead has written a long letter to Assistant Attorney-General Bickley, showing what the practice of the Government has been, and on what grounds it is founded. A decision against him, he says, would take at least $20,000,000 out of the Treasury.

THE BAY OF SAMANA. St. Domingo advices of two weeks ago reported that the General Luperon had captured Samana, and on landing had issued a decree declaring the Bay of Samana no longer in possession of President Baez, and consequently that all treaties made by him with the United States for the cession or lease of the Bay are null and void. The Government has sent a war steamer down there to look after this valiant warrior and see that he doesn't smash things.

The President has issued his proclamation for an election in Mississippi to take place November 30.

"Justice" and John Neal.

Mr. Editor:

Wishing to obtain correct information on the important subject of the ability of hydrants to withstand the action of frost, the writer cut out the article of "Justice" in the Whig and Courier of the 8th inst.—in which he quoted John Neal as authority for the statement that "no hydrant has yet been made that can be relied upon in winter," and also that "Water Works can never be relied upon as a substitute for a Fire Department"—and sent it to the latter gentleman, asking him if such was the result of his investigation and experience. Below I append the answer of Mr. Neal. In addition to the matters referred to above, I made inquiries relative to the amount of head of water in Portland, in order to compare its value, as a means of extinguishing fires, with that of our proposed works.

From a note enclosed with this, I learn that the reservoir on Bramhall's Hill is 160 feet above the level of the sea, 95 feet above the City Buildings, and 80 feet above the Preble House, United States Hotel, &c. It will thus be seen that the head of water is much less than it will be in this city, as a reservoir on Thomas' Hill would be about 280 feet above the lower step of the Custom House, the pitch of C. E. Dole's house, being 224 feet above that point, while the water level in the reservoir would be all some feet higher. In addition to this, the high land of Thomas' Hill would be supplied (for fire purposes) directly from the receiving main, which would have a head of some fifty feet more.

The following is the number of feet of fall from the still of C. E. Dole's house on Thomas' Hill, to the different localities named, as ascertained from surveys made at various times:

Lower step of Custom House,	224 feet
Court House,	187
Hammond Street Church,	149
Avonue House, corner Union and Fourth Streets,	182
State Street, opposite residence of A. M. Roberts,	120
Methodist Church, corner Pine and Somerset Streets,	113
Corner Hammond and Fifth Sts.,	99
Cedar "	86

It will be seen from the above that the highest point of the city named, being the junction of Cedar and Hammond Streets, near the residence of R. S. Prescott, Esq., is 80 feet below the proposed reservoir, being a fall of six feet more than that from the Portland reservoir to the central portion of that city. Without further enlarging upon the subject, I append the letter of Mr. Neal.

R.

Mr. J. Swett Rowe, Clerk Bangor Water Co.

DEAR SIR,—I am not a little surprised at the opinions attributed to me by "Justice." I have never written, said, thought, nor intimated anything of the sort. In fact the question has never been presented, in the shape he refers to.

I have no doubt that the McClellan hydrant "may be relied upon in winter." The testimony furnished by Major General O. O. Howard, published two weeks ago in The Argus, will be abundantly corroborated by evidence which I shall take an opportunity of giving to the public, after they have had time to breathe in a week or two, at furthest.

How far even those hydrants may prove a substitute for the "fire department" is a new question. My own belief is, that although for a time, one or two seasons perhaps, we should be unwise to abandon the fire steamers, yet after the trial of an average winter it would be entirely justifiable and a prodigious saving, if the result should be satisfactory.

I cannot ascertain, with exactness, what you desire to know, about the head of water on Bramhall's Hill; there is no reservoir on Munjoy in immediate prospect; but speaking from memory, I believe the height of Sebago is 240 feet above the level of the sea, and that the height of the reservoir now under way on Bramhall will furnish a head of about one half that height, or 120 feet above tide-water—far above what will be required for our city buildings, Preble House, the United States Hotel, the Falmouth, the Custom House and Post Office, and all our churches.

A hydrant with two, three or four outlets will keep as many hose companies occupied all the time (if the right kind is obtained) and furnish water for everything in danger here.

I should answer [illegible] on ginocrand more [illegible] not abroad just now.

Yours with respect,

JOHN NEAL.

Portland, July 1, 1869.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION. Harper's Weekly discusses some new political issues and parties in the Temperance question, as follows:

No one who has watched closely since the close of the war can be surprised by the prominence which the temperance question has assumed in the political mind of this country. The progress of intemperance is such as to challenge the most thoughtful inquiry as to the most proper method of arresting it. The temperance politicians point to the wasted homes and ruined lives and public order. They point to statistics and humanity. They appeal to the tax levy and to the needle peace. Their argument is powerful and persuasive. The right and propriety of license they contend every where is conceded; but the principle of liberty, [illegible] have constantly refused to support the Whig or the Democratic party, if either of them had expressed themselves in correspondingly strong terms upon the slavery question. As it was, it was evidently doubtful whether Liberty would gain by the success of either party; but can the same be said of the temperance movement?

Political and Personal.

The next State elections will be in Kentucky, August 2; Alabama, August 3; Tennessee, August 5.

Iowa has not yet ratified the Fifteenth Amendment. There has been no session of the Legislature since April, 1868.

The State of Virginia has ratified her Free Constitution by the largest majority ever given for any State Constitution, past or present. It is estimated at 230,000. The disfranchising and proscriptive provisions are voted down by at least 20,000.

The Providence Journal, owned and supposed to be edited by Senator Anthony, says: "There is authority for stating that no Cabinet changes are contemplated, and that all which has recently been said on that subject in various newspapers is merely speculation."

The Washington Chronicle says that if Hon. Lewis Dent accepts a nomination for Governor of Mississippi, it will be on the explicit condition that the party putting him forward shall indorse reconstruction, the Chicago platform of 1868, and the administration of President Grant.

The platform of the recent Republican Convention of Mississippi embraces free speech, free schools, and free ballot-box equality before the law, the ratification of Article XV. of the Federal Constitution universal amnesty and universal suffrage. The convention is said to have been constituted of the ablest men in the State. Many of the delegates and several of the officers were colored.

The Virginia Senate will be composed of thirty-one white Conservatives, eight white and four colored Republicans. The House of Delegates will have ninety-seven white and three colored Conservatives, and thirty-three white and eleven colored Republicans. The Richmond Dispatch makes a different estimate, as follows: Senate—Conservatives, 29; Radicals, 12. House of Delegates—Conservatives, 87; Radicals, 41; doubtful, 10.

The next Southern election of interest will be had in Tennessee, where the contest is between two Republicans—Senter, who will command the Democratic support with that of the Conservative Republicans, and Stokes, who leads the Radicals, and yet does not have the support of Mr. Brownlow and his friends. What makes the election peculiarly important is the fact that the Legislature to be chosen will elect a United States Senator in the place of Fowler.

The New York Journal of Commerce thinks it is the height of absurdity for the Democratic party to make any further resistance to negro suffrage. It says: "Men of sense understand the folly of contending with the past, and inevitable. Politicians, who, as a general rule, have the limited vision of grasshoppers, and no sense beyond the scent of the nearest flesh-pots, are the creatures who commit the ridiculous blunders of the California Democratic platform."

The Baltimore Commercial, which is run in ex-Confederate interests, finds no special comfort in the election returns from the Old Dominion. It says:

"While we are disposed to rejoice over the defeat of Wells, we find that we do not see much in the election to delight any Democratic heart. Though the negro may be subject to the same partisan bribery and corruption, and exercise his franchise between carpet-bagger and scalawag, yet the fact that a great and noble people have been hunted down until they are compelled to make such a choice is no humiliation."

REAR ADMIRAL HENRY K. HOFF. The story that Rear Admiral Hoff was to be followed from command in the Cuban waters, because the government was dissatisfied with his course, was emphatically denied two or three days ago, and it was added that he had been intrusted with very important duties. He is an old man, and has been for some time in poor health, and has asked to be sent to less arduous work at the convenience of the government, and there is reason to believe that some weeks hence, when he has concluded his inquiries into the miserable imprisonment of American citizens, his request will be granted.

Important to Farmers!

A trial of MOWING MACHINES will take place on the farm of MASON STRICKLAND, of Bangor, Stillwater Avenue, on

TUESDAY, JULY 20th,

And it will be very much to the interest of the Farmers to examine into the various merits of Machines before purchasing, and defer doing so until after the trial, as then and there they will have favorable opportunity of seeing them tested.

All Agents are cordially invited to put in Machines, and it is hoped that a good delegation of Farmers will be present.

The Season of Exhaustion.

No matter how vigorously by nature the system may be constituted, in the month of August, September more than from the depressing effects of the temperature of mid-summer, under strength is gradually undermined by whole-some forces at work through which it operates. Debilitating influences are set in motion, and the mind, sympathizing with the machinery of the body, participates in the general prostration. A stimulant is therefore required, to impart to the system a healthful energy, and to counteract the effects of the season. Such a stimulant is supplied in a pure, genial and thoroughly wholesome form in HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, which the people of the country after more than twenty years of trial, have unanimously accepted and endorsed as the best tonic, alterative and anti-bilious preparation, which medical chemistry has yet produced. The tonic properties of this fine vegetable invigorator, are derived from the vegetable kingdom, and are therefore safe and reliable. Every ingredient that enters into its composition has the most specific virtue, and their combination is the result of careful investigation, experiment, and regular analysis, by scientific and experienced chemists. Among those who may be enumerated as using, although not subject to, fever and ague, are those who, at all times, are liable to be attacked from imperfect digestion. A course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is the best possible safeguard against the fever and ague, which menaces persons of both sexes, and all ages, during the heated term.

The Great Flood in Texas

GALVESTON, Texas, July 14.

Today cars were sent out from Hempstead, Texas, with boats to rescue the sufferers by the flood in the Colorado Valley, who had taken refuge in tree tops, in Keg Lake bottom, and who had been two days in that position.

It is said water is two ft. over the top of the telegraph poles in the farms in Eagle Lake bottom. There are various rumors from Bastrop, but as communication is entirely cut off none can be credited. It is impossible at present to arrive at the estimate of the loss to the towns along the Colorado. The water has fallen six feet, but in Brazos was still rising.

All the rivers near San Antonio have overflown their banks.

Evening Shadows.

Surely the day is done!
The set of sun,
Long fall the shadows from the lowly hills;
Not yet have waked the sleepy little rills:
Hush, mother, never where—
Although the day is done,
Ah! the day is done!
And one by one
The ghosts of starlight flit across the sky:
In shore, the fire dies on the carpet like
Tired of play,
The children say,
Because the day is done.

We know the day is done!
Our feet have run
Unresting in the path that duty made,
Treading on thorns, of danger not afraid,
And rest is sweet.
Thanks, night, to share our foot,
And day again comes on.

The day of life is done!
And set the sun!
Bid him to fairest sights that earth can show
Have boldness, though enchanting music flow
And maids be low
Unwrinkled now:
Indeed the day is done!

But is the day yet done?
And set the sun?
When scaled, if all the fields beside the air
And Paradise flowers bloom everywhere
Or purple hills
Of asphodels,
Heaven's day is just begun!

THE HORSE OF FARMING. There is some humor connected with farming. The newspapers inform me that I own an ideal farm, and I will derive a large profit from farming. So I do. But it is not in the highest branches, and not in the sense a gentleman from Baltimore would use the words as follows:

"Dear sir:—I see by the papers that your farm is the best you have ever had, and that it is. Will you tell me what crops you raise, and what is your method of raising them? I have a farm of two hundred acres in this city, and I have never yet been able to make it pay expenses. Will you tell me how I can make it answer?"

I replied though I never could make it pay. Sir, I don't charge a particle for this letter you have done, and your farm and mine will be as like as two peas. Your farm is utterly just as profitless as mine. Truly yours, &c.

It is a matter of surprise how much money is buried in a small piece of ground. Indeed, many gentlemen are surprised at a simple as a quilting piece of ground. Some are at loss before your compliments will produce as much for your money. To drain it (and every piece of ground, wet or dry, should be underdrained with tile), to compost it (and no farm is complete more sand is well plowed that has not a load of hollowed lightwood chips dug out of the edge of the woods), dig out boulders and blast the rocks, to lay boundary walls, to enrich the whole with abundant manure, but above all, to do a good amount of grading, will prevent any man from handling his money.

Then one must keep at work, done two, three or three times over, because you did not do it right the first time. Plow two feet deep, that must go down never! trees set where you don't want them, moved to where you don't want them, digging and moving again; fancy crops, by which I mean crops for which we pay extravagant prices, whose yield is an investment to the description of which you bought; these together with experimental manure, and new and unheard of preserving, tilling, and power machines, and machines of nature, will give you a agreeable relaxation if he is found pending his money.

But I am conceited, and desire to be brought to a chilling sense of his proper place. [illegible] I advise him to attempt grading. [illegible] the art of increasing the wealth [illegible] makes valley where nature made hills, makes hills where the ages have made valleys. Exchange a northern for a southern home. In months of the [illegible] loss of ground, [illegible] a flat piece to [illegible] the wrinkles and crossed of a sheet [illegible] cloth. One has no idea how the [illegible] the world was made until he undertakes to make it. I never admired [illegible] much as since I made a small [illegible] up about four feet high and stopped. It was a good [illegible]. I now look with an increased respect upon the neighboring hills. I had [illegible] conception of what it cost to make them.

REMEDY FOR THE TURNIP FLY. S. Edwards, Todd, in the Working Farmer, proposes to rid the turnip crop of this pest by the use of ashes. He says:

As soon as the young plants can be seen, set a light sprinkling of wood ashes over the rows. It will not injure the house-wife's solve that is used in making a meal. Ashes cannot be applied satisfactorily with the hand. The dust should be stupply to cover the plants. Even with the finest sifter, it will prevent their being devoured by the turnip fly. When ashes are applied by hand without a sieve, which should be held close to the ground, careless operators are very liable to throw it on so thoughtfully as to smother the tender plants.

USE THE RAKE. It is also much the custom to allow the ground to get weedy, and then make a job of hoeing out. It is better not to allow the weeds to get the start, and to effect this, no implement is more useful than a sharp steel rake. In small gardens, especially where of very choice lots of flowers, the rake can be kept in such frequent use between the rows and among the plants that very little weeding will be necessary. It is many times easier to kill a weed just as it is the seed leaf, than when it becomes a well-established plant. Stir the soil frequently with the rake, and the weeds will be taken at their most vulnerable time. A short exposure to the sun while in their early stage of growth will kill the hardiest of them. [Agriculturist.

TURNIPS FOR PIGS. A correspondent of the Country Gentleman, planted a few acres of turnips which were ready to begin to feed the first week in July, when they were fed to pigs, and no other feed given until the last week in September. No lot of pigs could have done better growing and keeping in solid condition all the while. He does not advocate cooking white turnips for pigs under any circumstances. They are only fit for them new in warm weather. Steamed Swedes are good mixed with plenty of meal, but potatoes are so much better that the meal mixed with them would feed as fast.
